"Stewart, what is going on with you? All I am asking of you is a simple brochure! This should be fun—your favorite trip around the city. Don't you have any imagination?"

The noise of the keyboards started to sound like a song to Stewart. He noticed that often happened to him after lunch. After lunch he would walk out of the cafeteria straight to third block, Introduction to Digital Publishing, or Beginning On-Line Publications, he could not remember. He did not like his classes but after lunch, it got worse.

All of the students around him seemed to know exactly what they were doing. They sat down and began hammering away at their keyboards, and Stewart didn't move. He firmly believed that if he didn't know what came next he ought to just wait until it came to him. He looked at the place where his thumb and first finger met. When he looked at the angle they made he thought of the beak of a giant bird, like an eagle. He remembered one day when school let out early and he had taken the subway to the park zoo. There was a Peregrine Falcon at the zoo and when he sharpened his beak on a stone it sounded the same as the noise the students around him were making on the keyboards.

Suddenly Stewart was flying from his plastic desk chair out out out of his own head. He thought how it must be to fly like that falcon and he thought of its name again. . . Peregrine. It sounded like pair-of-grin to him and that made him smirk a little.

Pair of grins made him think of those men who dressed as clowns down near the American Museum of Natural History. One of them was always on a unicycle, even when he took a break and got some lunch. The other guy stood behind the unicycle guy and together they would juggle. They would juggle back and forth between the two of them. Sometimes they juggled oranges and sometimes they would let the bystanders toss in different things and they would juggle whatever they were given.

A. artists
B. cyclists
C. observers

Click the sentence that best supports that Ansel Adams' approach to photography changed from a hobby to an art form.

Ansel would decide carefully on the subject of each photograph he took, then choose the angle from which to take it, sometimes hiking for miles to find the best vantage point. He studied the movement of sun and clouds, often waiting hours for the perfect light with which to "paint" his photograph. Then, as he developed the film into prints, he found that he could bring his own paintings to life.

"When I first made snapshots in and around Yosemite," he said, "I was casually making a visual diary—recording where I had been and what I had seen—and becoming intimate with the spirit of wild places. Gradually my photographs began to mean something in themselves; they became records of experiences as well as of places. People responded to them and my interest in the creative potential of photography grew."
This question has two parts. First, answer part A. Then, answer part B.

Part A

Which of these inferences about the author's purpose is supported by the text?

- She wants to reveal Ansel Adams' inspiration.
- She wants to promote Ansel Adams' publications.
- She wants the reader to consider a career in photography.
- She wants the reader to know how Ansel Adams was raised.

Part B

Which sentence from the text best supports your answer in part A?

- "When they arrived, Ansel's parents gave him a gift—a simple Kodak Box Brownie camera."
- "He made up a set of work sheets on which he could write down every decision he made when taking a photograph—the type of film he'd use and how it was loaded in the camera, which lens and filters he'd used, and all of the camera settings."
- "He created his photos carefully, as though they were paintings like those seen at the Expo."
- "Ansel Adams created over forty thousand photos during his lifetime."

B. “He also took notes on the amount of light available when he took each photo.”
C. “This helped him to improve with every photo he took, and he read every book and magazine he could find to learn more.”

D. The phrase uses language that makes the reader think photography and painting are simple.
A student is writing a research report about the volcanic island, Surtsey, for a class assignment. Read the paragraph from a draft of the report and answer the question that follows.

Surtsey is a volcanic island that is located off the coast of Iceland. This island is unique because it was formed by volcanic activity and only rose above the ocean’s surface in the 1960s. When the island appeared, it was a barren rock with no animal or plant life. Scientists studied Surtsey because they wanted to see if and how life would develop on Surtsey. The first signs of life on the island were the results of seeds that were carried by the wind and waves. Eventually, birds nested on Surtsey. Today Surtsey has a number of plants and other organisms living on it.

Which sentence best concludes the paragraph?

A. The number and types of island plants and animals is not expected to keep increasing.
B. The ocean someday could rise to levels that would cause the island to disappear again.
C. The island has nesting grounds for many species of sea birds, including puffins and gulls.
D. This island is important because it has been a valuable tool for scientists studying plant and animal life.
A student is writing a realistic fiction narrative for language arts class. Read the draft of the narrative and complete the task that follows.

An Important Decision

With a few clicks on the school’s website, I find what I am looking for - the dates for volleyball tryouts. Nothing makes me happier than that sport. Whether I am casually bumping the ball with friends in the backyard or spiking one into the opposition’s court with laser accuracy, I feel completely alive. Even though the official tryouts are a few weeks away, I have been practicing relentlessly when the gymnasium is open to students.

My excitement leads me to call my best friend Katelyn. As soon as I hear the line ringing, a thought occurs to me and makes my heart flutter. The first day of tryouts is the same date as Katelyn’s dance recital! She is depending on my moral support. When Katelyn’s chipper voice answers, “Hey Katelyn . . . hang on a second . . . uh, let me call you back.”

Continue the narrative by writing one to three paragraphs that help readers better understand the central conflict of the story.

Source #4 describes how some people want to eliminate the penny from the United States' economy. Source #2 adds to the reader's understanding by providing more information about why some people think the penny should be eliminated. For example, it gives the concrete example of a study done by Dr. Whaples which indicated that eliminating the penny could save over $700 million because of the time wasted counting pennies. This concrete example helps the reader understand that eliminating the penny has the potential to save a significant amount of money. In addition, Source #2 also provides more information on the reasons some people think the penny should remain. For example, many people fear that eliminating the penny and rounding prices will cause customers to have to pay more over time. This example helps the reader understand that there may be negative consequences to eliminating the penny.

Source #1 is most likely to be relevant to students researching the ways to reduce the cost of producing the penny because it provides the most detailed information about changes that have been made to the penny in the past to reduce costs. For example, it points out that in 1982 Congress changed the metals in the penny to contain more zinc and less copper in order to reduce the cost. Also, during WWII steel was used to make pennies instead of copper. These two pieces of information make Source #1 the most relevant source for ways to reduce the cost of producing pennies.
