			field study of the effectiveness of the McGraw-Hill Reading Wonders elementary program. The research design will test the assumptions upon which the Reading Wonders program is based and assess the effectiveness of all components of the Reading Wonders program. The study design will incorporate valid quantitative assessment of student learning, student attitudes, teacher practices and teacher attitudes. The design will reflect consideration of the teachers' professional wisdom through the solicitation of qualitative responses to open-ended questions. These questions will probe teachers' perceptions about the materials used along with their students' attitudes and knowledge gains. Functionally equivalent groups of teachers and students will be created by the careful matching of teachers and schools on key variables (e.g., teacher experience, teacher practices, school locations and student social demographic characteristics). The nationwide study will include schools representing a wide variety of geographical locations. Experimental conditions will not be mixed within schools; schools will be randomly assigned to the treatment group or the control group. We are very excited to begin several Reading Wonders pilots across the United
