

Indiana Department of Education Implements National Online Recruitment Service for K-12 Districts and Charter Schools

November 3, 2017

Expanding student access to effective educators in every classroom and school is a key priority for the Indiana Department of Education (IDOE). In order to support districts in the recruitment of outstanding educators, the IDOE Office of Educator Effectiveness is providing access to Teachers-Teachers.com online recruitment service. This service is available to Indiana public school districts and charter schools. Teachers-Teachers.com is designed to help school administrators connect with job seekers nationwide, enabling district recruiters to--

- Post job openings for all positions, including teachers, administrators, and related service personnel;
- Build online applications for different position types;
- Search a database of licensed Indiana educators as well as national educators interested in working in Indiana;
- Proactively contact candidates directly by email or phone;
- Receive applications from interested candidates through the Teachers-Teachers platform;
- Filter candidates by different search criteria such as licensure, experience, or education;
- Manage applicants online;
- Post and send notifications for job fair events and;
- Receive technical support from a dedicated recruitment consultant.

Indiana public school districts and charter schools can register with Teachers-Teachers.com free of charge at Indiana.Teachers-Teachers.com. After completing your registration, you will be contacted by Winfield Cline or Cammy Jones, the Indiana Recruitment Coordinators for Teachers-Teachers.com, for an overview of the service, training opportunities, and ongoing technical assistance.

We encourage all districts and charter schools to create employer accounts by December 31, 2017 in preparation for the spring job recruitment window.
