Indiana sees record participation for national College Application Day

High school seniors can apply to 32 Hoosier colleges for free on Sept. 28

The Indiana Commission for Higher Education announces today that 17 colleges will waive their college application fees on Sept. 28 in recognition of College Application Day. Another 15 colleges have reported free applications year-round.

In addition, more than 90 high schools across the state will host College Application Day events to help high school seniors navigate the admissions process—making this Indiana’s biggest College Application Day since joining the initiative in 2013.

“Every year we are encouraged to see more high schools and colleges participating in College Application Day,” said Indiana Commissioner for Higher Education Teresa Lubbers. “At a time when the value of higher education has never been greater, College Application Day provides assistance to students as they take a critical step toward their futures.”

About the American College Application Campaign

The American College Application Campaign (ACAC) is a national effort to increase the number of first-generation students and students from low-income families pursuing a college degree or other higher education credential. The primary purpose of this effort is to help high school seniors navigate the complex college admissions process and ensure they apply to at least one postsecondary institution. The effort occurs during the school day, with a focus on students who might not otherwise apply to college. In 2015, ACAC programs took place in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.
