- This resource creates opportunity for dialogue and interactive theater work to demonstrate alternative behavior

- Good overall, especially with incorporating diverse populations. May promote some good discussions

- This would be a great tool for parents and church groups, etc.
- I thought this video would be excellent to show to parent groups who have junior high or high school students.
- My one concern was that by portraying only African American families in the video individuals who view the video may think that the problem is only one that happens in an African American or minority family, missing the important message of the film.
- Video would be appropriate for parent groups to reinforce that what children are living and seeing at home will transfer to the child's relationships.
